JEWISH COMMUNAL PROJECT LAUNCHED

Thousand Persons Hear Advocacy of Young Men's Hebrew Association of Camden

More than a thousand persons clowded into the Broadway Theatre, Camden, yesterday afternoon and heard Isaac Hassler, of Philadelphía, impress upon his hearers the importance and necessity of a Jewish communal building, such as was planned by the Young Men's Hebrew Association of Camden and launched by them yesterday. "There are many things that the Jew of today needs, and the only thing to my mind to satisfy that need is the organization of the 'Young Men's Hebrew Association?' said Mr. Hassler.

Mr. Haster. The necturg opened about four o'clock with J. F. Kantor, head of the Young Men's Helerew 'ssociation, presiding. Mr. Kantor briefly outlined the aims compaign. He explaned that Cander was entirely lacking in the facilities to safeguard and foster in the Jewish yout the desred knowledge and surroundings and that a building that would embrace a house of worship, a Sabbath school, a Desil and mublic functions, assembly social and public functions, assembly rooms for numerous philanthropic and beneficial organizations and facilities for recreation and exercise were not only de-recreation and exercise were not only de-scrable but a necessity. Dr. Cyrus Adler, president of Drexel Gollege, sent a letter that was read be-fore the assembly, in which he expressed the hope that the Hebrew people would realize the duty to their past, to their commonity and to their past, to their commonity and to their children pad would ecoperate and unreal in mains the "The meeting was conducted under the direction of the following committee of the Young Men's Hebrew Association: Chairman, J. F. Kantor; Dr. Wilham M. Lashman, Benjamin Natal, Max Goldich, Mark Olus, Jacob L. Furor, Arnold Weis and Bertrand Schneeburg.
