

OVER IN CAMDEN

* For the fourth time in six months the pool box in the Crescent Wheelmen's headquarters has been broken open and robbed.

* Articles of incorporation were filed in the County Clerk's office by the American Laundry Company and the Carbon Light and Power Company.

* Florence Hall, 13 years old, of 872 South Central avenue, was admitted to the Cooper Hospital last evening with her right elbow dislocated, the result of a fall.

* Julius Strenger, of Pensauken, was held in bail yesterday by Justice Thompson, charged by Fish Warden Guthridge with destroying fish by draining a lake near his home.

* There was a general suspension of business among the Hebrew merchants of Camden yesterday in celebration of the Day of Atonement. Services were held in Newton and Furey Halls.

* Weltha Cook, a young girl, of No. 7 South Eighth street, was struck and severely bruised by a drill engine while playing on the railroad tracks at Tenth street. She was taken to the Cooper Hospital.

* The Republican election officers of the Ninth precinct, the Sixth ward, reported to the County Board of Elections yesterday that they had not signed the returns because they believed ten ballots rejected by the Democratic members of the Board should have been counted. The County Board made no change in the returns and forwarded them to the Secretary of State.
