January, '37

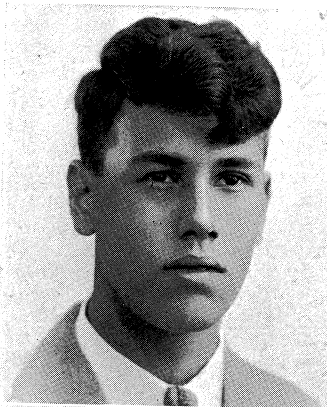

DEAR CLASSMATES:

With a combined sorrow and delight, we now realize that three of the shortest, happiest, and most precious years of our lives have advanced us from the realm of childhood to that of manhood and womanhood. These years of interesting study and enjoyable play have enriched our minds with cherished memories and have developed between ourselves that unbreakable bond of true friendship.

But future years will present a different, a more trying environment, which will challenge and require of us all our abilities which we, as individual students, have amassed. All the culture, philosophy, wisdom, and knowledge, which have been given us by an ever-helping, parent-like faculty, will probably be found essential for the attainment of success.

So let us, in whatever field of endeavor may attract us, uphold our motto—"Defeat is only for those who accept it"—which we have consistently and successfully sustained throughout our school years. Thus may our untiring efforts, combined with that strong optimistic spirit instilled in us at Camden High School, carry us to a more extensive development of our ability and talent, so that our lives will flourish in the realization of our ideals and prosper in the happiness of self-achieved success.

WALLACE B. HUSSONG, President.
