Organization Will Wield Political Whip to Preserve Judicial Influence

Justices of the Peace in Mercer County have taken to the warpath Dissatisfied with the manner in which the criminal business of the county is handled, to say nothing of the hostility toward bills now before the Legislature which would cramp their style, a fighting organization prepared itself to do bettle at last night's meeting ...

Officers were elected, with Alphonse J. Pons, Jr., of 186 Washington Street, as president. However, a series of resolutions, the contents of which are be ing carefully shielded, constituted the major business of the evening. Ac-cording to persons who attended the meeting, they are loaded with dyna-fire. Members of the Legislature have been invited to "meet with the boys" next Tuesday night in the American Mechanics Building. At that time, they will be given the proper slant on bills which would lift a lot of business out of the J. P.'s hands. William H. Geraghty, former prosecu-tor, has been designated as counsel for

William H. Geraghty, former prosecu-tor, has been designated as counsel for the Justices of the Feace. It seems that a breach has developed between the J. P.'s and the prosecutor's office since Charles H. English assumed the office. Trivial complaints have brought rebukes from the prosecutor, it is said, and the Feace Justices resent.

it is said, and the Peace Justices resent having their judgment questioned. Scores of persons have been advised to take their complaints to the city police courts. That has meant less business for the J. P.'s, who are paid on the basis of the complaints they handle. They were Loomis, who testified yesterday that the woman often had threatened to take his life and hers; Miss Margaret Cramer, New York show girl, and the captain and one member of the crew of the crew of the Loomis' yacht, Nadine. Two other persons were sought by officials to tell of their relations with the woman since she recently returned from a Cuban trip with Loomis, Miss Gramer and others. The two were known to officials only as "Race Horse Charile" and "Frisco Legs," alleged gamblers. A coroner's jury yesterday held unbettle down as a private citizen for the first time in thirty years. He intendito keep himself as far removed from public attention as possible. He has no definite plans for the future, except for the writing of a series of magazine articles for which he is now under contract. For the present, at least, he will remain in Northampton, slthough he has not decided whether he will make his permanent home here. He does not plan to reengage in the practice of law. As long as he does live here however, he will continue to occupy the modest house in Massaoit Street. He is greatly attached to that house because it was there that his sons were born.
