Battle With Policeman After Blowing Up Safe in Pavonia Station-Shoot at Tower Operator Who Telegraphs .* for Help

In true Wild West fashion five fearly armed desperadoes swooped down upon East Canden yesterday morning, and within two hours they had empided their revolvers several times over, beld up a bridge tender, cut telephone wrate, blev up a safe, ordered a train erev to move ou, perforated a tover house with bulles and finally made their escard. It was all done between 12.35 o'dock, when the bandits began operations at the State street bridge over Cooper Creek, and 12.50, when they gave final battle to polocemen

PUDICE-WAY SALDI and citizens out Federal street, and dis-appeared in the darkness. Noter in Camden county's history'was there such a bold intrusion. The bundlis are supposed to be a part of the sang which murdred Operator Clendenen, near Jerser Shore, Pa., and which has been terrorizing raiload operators and tow'r-men in all parts of Penasyltanis and New Jerser precently. Ordered to Bed Till was ordered to bed, and after he lay down on his back the bandits covered him over completely and cantioned him not to move under penalty of death. The useperados then disappeared. Fearing that one of the gang had remained be-hind to keep him from sounding an alarm Till remained in bed until he heard a car approaching. Then he ventured jout and summoned his partner, David Loog-how the back house to use the Work on the back house to use the barbone the bridgeneders found that the bandits had cut the wires. The men hurried on State street, passed around the old Cox farm, strok into the river road, then headed for Pavonia. Blow Up Safe After passing guardedly through the

Blow Up Safe Alter passing sturkedly ithough the freight yards of the Pennsylvani Rail road the bundlis came up to thein Rain Station. The thirtees entered the little office by removing a heary wire screen from a window in the rear of the ticket compariment, which is a room Sa10 feet in size. Three men had just about en-tered the station when five, who were left on guard, saw a train approaching. When Engineer Trais stopped the drill engine near the tower house the two men who were ratching on the outside approached Confluxed on 2d Page-Sith Column
